

Hyphens Worksheet #2

Read the sentences carefully and correct any hyphen mistakes you can find. Circle your answers so my old eyes can clearly see where the hyphens go or need to be removed. If the sentence is correct, write a C at the end.

1. Tonight, the chef, who is well known for many Hollywood parties, is following a time tested recipe.
2. Jim waved at his soon to be ex-girlfriend and realized that tomorrow, he would be a newly single man.
3. All twenty seven of his essay pages were filled with made up words.
4. The chef adds two thirds of a cup of flour and one half teaspoon of vanilla.
5. It is said that possession is nine tenths of the law.
6. Denny would like to go to a dating website to find a girlfriend, but his parents are very anti Internet dating.
7. Mary said her exhusband's father would always be a part of the family.
8. Heather's mom thinks she lacks selfconfidence.
9. Kevin was an allstate running back during his senior year in high school.
10. His pre World War II views changed drastically after he fought in the war.
11. You need to repress your dress.
12. Lying on the floor beside the plant he had knocked over and chewed on, the cat looked extremely self-satisfied.
13. I am in school, so I only want to work a part time job.
14. Martin is on antiinflammatory medication.
15. The Civil War took place in the nineteenth century.
16. Mrs. Douglas gave Toshiko a seashell and some newspaper wrapped fish to take home.
17. The Moche were a pre-Columbian people who developed a sophisticated culture in ancient Peru.
18. The swiftly moving tugboat pulled alongside the barge and directed it away from the rocks.
19. We knew we were driving too fast when our tires skidded on the rain slick surface.
20. Olivia had hoped to find a pay as you go plan to finance the building of her vacation home.