

Parallelism in the Declaration of Independence (p. 122)

Parallelism – A rhetorical device that uses similar grammatical forms or sentence patterns to express ideas of equal importance. Parallelism generally makes both written and spoken expression more precise and powerful.

Ex. Of the people	By the people	For the people
------------------------------------	----------------------	-----------------------

Ex. We have warned	We have reminded	We have appealed
-------------------------------------	-------------------------	-------------------------

Read the Declaration of Independence (p. 122). Find (3) examples of parallelism in the document.

--	--	--

--	--	--

--	--	--

Parallelism in the Declaration of Independence (p. 122)

Parallelism – A rhetorical device that uses similar grammatical forms or sentence patterns to express ideas of equal importance. Parallelism generally makes both written and spoken expression more precise and powerful.

Ex. Of the people	By the people	For the people
------------------------------------	----------------------	-----------------------

Ex. We have warned	We have reminded	We have appealed
-------------------------------------	-------------------------	-------------------------

Read the Declaration of Independence (p. 122). Find (3) examples of parallelism in the document.

--	--	--

--	--	--

--	--	--