

“To Build a Fire” Narrative

Jack London’s “To Build a Fire” is narrated in third person omniscient point of view. How would the story be different if it were told in first person point of view? What if the dog told the story? The “boys” at the camp? Your task is to choose an alternate point of view from which to retell the story. You may choose from the following:

1. The man- First Person Point of View
2. The dog- First Person Point of View

Remember, the plot is the same, but the point of view will change. What sort of commentary might the dog have? The man?

“To Build a Fire” Narrative

Jack London’s “To Build a Fire” is narrated in third person omniscient point of view. How would the story be different if it were told in first person point of view? What if the dog told the story? The “boys” at the camp? Your task is to choose an alternate point of view from which to retell the story. You may choose from the following:

1. The man- First Person Point of View
2. The dog- First Person Point of View

Remember, the plot is the same, but the point of view will change. What sort of commentary might the dog have? The man?

“To Build a Fire” Narrative

Jack London’s “To Build a Fire” is narrated in third person omniscient point of view. How would the story be different if it were told in first person point of view? What if the dog told the story? The “boys” at the camp? Your task is to choose an alternate point of view from which to retell the story. You may choose from the following:

1. The man- First Person Point of View
2. The dog- First Person Point of View

Remember, the plot is the same, but the point of view will change. What sort of commentary might the dog have? The man?

